Hares - Kokup and Punch

Location - Reservoir reserve Kew

Cheesecake

When I cleaned out the hash food tub so that Kokup and Punch could use it for their run, I found this - a pepper container 10 years past its use by date. Concerned there was a plot to kill us all with contaminated condiments, I surveyed 31 attendees at Kokup's run, as to the pepper's likely use-by date, knowing that the person selecting the nearest correct entry was most probably the contaminated condiment conspirator. Turns out it's Gargoyle – she knew the pepper's use-by date to the month and year – February 2009. Word is she wants to be next GM and is planting putrid pepper in the food tub to knock off any rivals. Interestingly 17 of the 31 surveyed guessed that the pepper must be older than 2009. Of these 7 went for the 1990s and 4 even voted for the 1980s – alarmingly one of these was Punch who was preparing our dinner for the evening. Despite the risk of out-of-use-by-date pepper potentially killing us all, Kokup was most blasé, exclaiming “what's wrong with old pepper, they've found old pepper in the pyramids and it's never killed anyone!!” Well excuse me Kokup, but the pyramids are full of dead mummies.

A peppered possum.

We enjoyed a very pleasant run/walk through the beautiful streets of Kew. God knows what the Kewians thought of Pseudo who ran the entire run dressed as Our Lady, the mother of God while clutching the baby Jesus in a plastic manger. Kokup and Punch provided a delicious spread of salads and cold meats followed by stollen.
